XV CONFERENCE TRIENNIAL IAUP

The Role Of Universities In The Formation Of Citizens Universal

Thematic basis

The various changes that our global society has been experiencing for decades, as a result of various processes, events and discoveries of a political, economic, cultural, scientific, technological and demographic, are leading us towards complex scenarios.

The world order is governed by new factors today. The concept of the universality has changed, and with it, education and what we mean by identity as a basic difference.

Experts have submitted various arguments, in an attempt to identify and explain developments and paradoxes, which have resulted in various dilemmas and in frank discussion of topics such as the urgent need to improve the quality of education at all levels; refining systems of public-private financing to respond adequately to the demands of the global society; accelerating the early insertion of graduates into the labor market; introducing mobility systems to meet the growing demand for outgoing and incoming programs; enhancing research and innovation, as pillars of the task requires us to the generation of new knowledge and adequately prepare the leaders of tomorrow.

For the International Association of University Presidents (IAUP), should play the role that higher education institutions in the discussion and overcoming these challenges is the key.

The role that higher education institutions should play in the discussion and overcoming of these challenges is a key question for IAUP.

Perhaps most important of all is the need for current and future students fully develop their potential to serve as the respective cultural, social and economic as future leaders of the world.

They belong to the whole world and, therefore, must have a sense of their own role as citizens of the planet. Respect for and appreciation of cultural diversity, a willingness to make the world fair and sustainable are some elements that should characterize the future citizen and global leader.

Universities should, as such, must consider that the world revolves faster ever before: from population and health –a consequence of increased life expectancy- to the size of field staff, a result of global communications and in real time, epidemics, asymmetries and threats on a global scale, including the weakening of the possibilities of appeal and protection.

All of this will require a thorough review of the vision, values, missions, goals, priorities, organization, content, structures and methods of higher education, with the aim of meeting today's challenges.

Higher Education should promote changes that achieve teacher and researcher excellence, critically and proactively, committed to the future with the most basic social needs and the construction of peace based on justice, equality and human development sustainable local and global.

These and other challenges are those that give occasion and substance to the XV Triennial Conference of the IAUP, to be conducted between September 29 and October 2, 2008, in the city of Viña del Mar, Chile.

INVITATION TO PARTICIPATE

The Role of Universities in educating the Universal Citizen

Barham Madaín
IAUP President Elect
President of University of Viña del Mar

Dear IAUP Members and Friends,

On behalf of Universidad Técnica Federico Santa María and Universidad de Viña del Mar, it is my great pleasure to invite you to attend our upcoming IAUP Triennial Conference in Viña del Mar, Chile, on next September 29th to October 2nd, 2008.

Nowadays, centres for higher education have to take into account that the world is changing more rapidly than at any time in history; global communications are influencing people; the world faces different standards of population and health (longevity); and that people need protection from epidemics, asymmetries and threats on a planet-wide scale.

Therefore, some of the most important challenges we face in the sector deal with achieving:

- Centres of higher education able to develop in their students and graduates the fullest possible ability to perform in different cultural, social and economic spheres as citizens of the world.
- Students conscious of their belonging to the world and thus, having a sense of their own role as citizens of the world.
- Cultural diversity and needs to make the world a fair and sustainable place to live in are elements, among others, that should characterize a global citizen.

We are invited to a thorough fully review of visions, values, missions, objectives, priorities, organization, contents, structures and methods of Higher Education. We will have to encourage changes that will make possible to achieve: excellence in teaching and research, which is critical and anticipative; we must be committed to the future; focused in the essential social needs; and on building peace based on justice, equality and sustainable human development at local and global level.

These are some of the topics we are going to analyse in our Triennial Conference titled "The Role of Universities in Educating The Universal Citizen".

The organizing Committee has invited outstanding leaders in higher education administration such as: Ban Ki-Moon, General Secretary, UNO; Federico Mayor Zaragoza, former General Director of UNESCO; José Miguel Insulza, General Secretary of the OAS; Wangari Maathai, Environment Vice Minister, Kenya; Nelson Mandela, former President, South African Republic to the Plenary Sessions. To the Parallel Sessions, we have invited Mr. Tomas Mastnak, Director of Office of Alliance of Civilizations; Mr. Nicholas Negroponte, MIT Media Lab Director; Mr. Rafael Rangel, President of Technologist Institute of Monterrey, among others.

We hope that the Opening Ceremony will be presided by HE Mrs. Michelle Bachellet, President of Chile, and the Minister of Education and the Minister for Foreign Affairs will participate as lecturers too.

We also would like to ask you to recommend other notable higher education leaders in your area to join IAUP and to participate in the Call for Papers of the Conference, as well, so that we can provide an even more meaningful forum for university leaders to work together for relevant improvement of higher education. See enclosed membership application forms for details.

I look forward to seeing you, hosting you and working with you in this meaningful educational event in Chile soon. I promise you, as well, that you will have a delightful and wonderful time enjoying our hospitality, beautiful and various landscapes, delicious wine, seafood and other.

Sincerely

Barham Madaín
IAUP President Elect
President of University of Viña del Mar

ACADEMIC PROGRAM

“The role of universities in educating the universal citizen”

The basic objective of next XV IAUP Triennial Conference is to analyse “The Role of University in Educating the Universal Citizen”. According to this, the conference will focus on three main topics: “Civilization Alliance: The Challenge of Educating Universal Citizen”; “Innovation, Creativity, Efficiency and Awareness: Qualities of the Complete Universal Citizen”; and, “The Universities Role in Sustainable Development and World Peace”.

Each Plenary Session theme will be analysed in detail through Parallel Sessions, from several points of view or specific transverse axes such as Vision, Principles and Culture; Innovation (dynamics, relationships and technologies); and, Academy and Management.

Besides, on the first day of Triennial Conference, afternoon, four round tables will take place, oriented to discuss topics of interest to various areas of the university community: University Student’s View; Women’s Access to Higher Education; Intercultural Universities: Experiences & Challenges; and, Contribution of NGO’s to Education of the Universal Citizen.

The Local Committee of the Triennial is boosting a Fair Project Technology and Innovation, to be held during the conference, whose aim will be to promote initiatives, products and services that the country’s universities have driven in technology, as well as promote the links with foreign universities.

To perform the fair, the organization will invite to attend universities, public organizations, enterprises and associations, through their university executives, entrepreneurs, researchers, academicians and practitioners from the public and private sectors, different areas of production and services in the country. It is hoped that exposing them to representatives of universities of the world, under the Triennial, hoping to interest them in participating in different initiatives of the fair.

All daily conferences, themed sessions, round tables and presentations will take place in the Hotel del Mar, venue of the Conference.

The hotel will have a Business Center, equipped with computers connected to Internet, printer, copier and scanner. This room will be available during the course of the event. Besides, there will be a Press Center for media accreditation.

The official languages of the meeting will be English and Spanish. Simultaneous interpretation.

CALL FOR PAPERS

The International Association of University Presidents invites nomination or submission of papers to be presented at its 2008 Triennial Conference. The Planning Committee seeks presentations around the Conference title and three themes:

The Role of Universities in Educating the Universal Citizen

- Theme One: The Challenge of Training Universal Citizens.
- Theme Two: Innovation, Creativity, Efficiency and Awareness: Qualities of the Complete Universal Citizen.
- Theme Three: The Role of Universities in Sustainable Development and World Peace.

IAUP Triennial has historically been the premier gathering of higher education leaders from around the world. Our 2008 conference anticipates more than 300 Presidents, Chancellors, Vice-chancellors and Rectors from more than 100 countries. Received papers will be published as part of the permanent record of proceedings. At the time of exposure of them will have technical support personnel and equipment

General Information

Chile is located in South America, in the Pacific Ocean's coast. Its continental length is approximately 4,200 km and 8,000 considering the Chilean Antarctic. Its continental and insular surface is 756,626 km², while its Antarctic territory's surface is 1,250,000 km², being the total surface 2,006,626 km². The average width of the country is about 177 km; the minimum continental width is 90 km, north from the mouth of Choapa River. Chile is a long and narrow country, which borders on the north with Peru, on the east with Bolivia and Argentina, on the west with the Pacific Ocean and on the south with Drake Passage.

Chile is a well educated country. Only 2.7% are illiterate. Some believe that Chile has one of the best school systems in South America.

Chile is a Republic, ruled by a democratic government, actually leaded by H. E. Mrs. Michelle Bachelet. The three powers of the State are clearly defined and independent. The Executive branch is led by the President of the Republic, who is also the Head of the State. The Judiciary branch is led by the Supreme Court, which administrates justice, supported by the Court of Appeal. The Legislative branch has a bicameral system.

Official flag

Official Coat of Arms

It is divided into the House of Deputies (Cámara de Diputados) and the Senate. The first one is made up of 120 deputies from the 15 regions that constitute the country, while the Senate is made up of 49 senators.

The Chilean currency is the Chilean Peso. There are $1,000, $2,000, $5,000, $10,000 and $20,000 bills and $1, $5, $10, $50, $100, $500 coins. In Chile, to express decimal numbers people use a comma. For example: 13,5% (thirteen point five percent) and a dot is used to express thousands. For example: 10.000 (ten thousand). ATMs are very common in Chile. Per-day withdrawal limits are usually around US$450. Banks are open to public Monday through Friday, from 9.00 to 14:00.

Climate

In the same way as its territory, the climate in Chile is varied, being determinate by the latitude, the proximity of the sea and the altitude. The country has two parallel mountain ranges, the coastal range and The Andes, between which there is a central valley. In the south, in Corcovado Gulf, this valley goes under the sea, originating an area of archipelagos, peninsulas and fjords, which culminate in Cape Horn.

Spring begins in September and ends in November; summer starts in December and finishes in February. It has a dry and warm climate, with temperatures over 30°C, that decrease during the night.

During the autumn (March – May) the temperature decreases gradually, while in winter (June- September) it drops, reaching even temperatures under zero in the morning and rising during sunny days without exceeding 15°C.

Energy

The electric voltage is 220 volt 50 cycle (220V 50Hz). Those devices design for 110V should use a transformer. The travel devices and portable computers usually include an auto-voltage transformer (110V-240V) to adapt them to Chilean electricity. The public lighting is quite good in almost all places in Santiago and the principal cities. Most of the houses and apartments use town gas which is distributed through pipes.

Timezone

Winter: -4 GMT; Summer: -3 GMT. Chile uses the 24 hours format. For example: 15:00 hrs means 3:00 pm. Also, Chile uses the European date format (day, month year). For Example: November 19 2007 is written 19.11.2007.

Going to Chile

By airplane, almost a dozen of European and American airlines fly to Santiago, most of them every day. Depending on the season, a return ticket from Europe varies between EUR 600 and 900. The minimum prices for direct flights from New York, Miami or Los Angeles vary between US$ 800 and US$ 1.300. Chile's Airpass for domestic flights given by the Chilean airline LAN could only be bought abroad, in combination with an international flight to Chile (www.contactchile.cl)

Arriving in Chile

When arriving at Chile, at the airport, all passengers' identification documents (passport or ID card and Visa) should be checked by Interpol. Passengers from Canada, United States, Mexico and Australia should pay a 'Reciprocity tax' before they pass through the Interpol area. This tax was created by the Chilean government to reciprocate the cost that Chilean people should pay to obtain a visa to travel through any of those countries.

Country	Reciprocity Tax
Australia	US$	56
Canada	US$	132
United States	US$	100
Mexico	US$	15

Beyond the Interpol area, there are the baggage conveyor belts. In this area you can find free baggage carts. In the next area you can find:

Customs

The goods that are part of the passenger's baggage are free of taxes and customs rights. The concept of baggage includes:

- Travel items (suitcases, bags and personal effects), garments, trinkets, toiletries, electrical appliances for personal use (alarm clock, camera, typewriter, calculator) used, worn up and appropriate for the normal necessities of the person who carries them and not for being sold.
- Items for professional purposes only, provided that they are used, portable, for manual use, that do not need an installation for its normal use and that correspond to the profession or job of the traveler.

Plant and Animal Health Inspection Service

At this stage, passengers should sign a Sworn Statement about the elements they are bringing. It is forbidden to bring: fruits, seeds or grains, vegetables or unprocessed animal products, earth, firearms, munitions or explosives, illegal drugs, biological products, veterinary medicines, animals or pets, alive or dead species.

It is important to have in mind when signing a Sworn Statement that telling lies is a crime and it could be punished by imprisonment (61 days to 3 years). If you refuse to sign it, you will be punished with a fine.

Another important recommendation to have in mind: Use the official services of the airport, with the corresponding identification.

Passport Loss

If you lose your Passport you have to follow some important steps:

1. Notify Carabineros (go the nearest police station)
2. Notify the Foreign Affairs and Immigration Department in your city.
See website www.extranjeria.gob.cl
3. Ask for a new passport at the Embassy or Consulate of your country of origin.
Each embassy has its own requirements to give a new passport

Safety

As well as in many other countries, safety is always a controversial subject. Chile is not a particularly dangerous country. Robbery rates are, comparatively, not very high. However it is important to be always careful. In your case, as an international passenger, you are more prone to robbery, because you are attractive to common criminals just for being a foreigner.

Practical recommendations to avoid robberies

- Never give information to strangers.
- Avoid carrying valuable objects and jewelry. It is a temptation for the criminals.
If you have something with you that could attract the attention, try to carry it discretely.
- Do not go out with your passport. You can carry a legalized photocopy, which cannot be adulterate if someone steal it or if you lose it.
- Carry with you only the money you will need. If you are going to carry a great amount of money, use a "kangaroo pouch" under your clothes.
- Avoid desert streets, as well as unlighted green areas, parks or parking places.
- Remember the location of buildings with guards and policemen who could help you.

Viña del mar

Viña del Mar (Spanish for “Vineyard of the Sea”), also known locally as La Ciudad Jardín (Spanish for “The Garden City”), is a thriving coastal city in central Chile, in the Valparaíso Region and province. The population stands at 318,489 (April 24, 2004), making it Chilean fourth largest city. It is best known as a tourist and beach destination (with multiple beaches including Reñaca, Las Salinas, Miramar, Casino, and others). One of its key attractions include a gambling casino and a yearly music festival (Festival de la Canción de Viña del Mar). The city also hosts a yearly ATP tennis tournament in clay courts (Movistar Open). The current mayor is Mrs. Virginia Reginato.

Viña del Mar is located some 110 km north-west from Santiago (less than one and half hours drive), and borders with the port of Valparaíso to the south.

Viña del Mar was declared a sister city of Sausalito city, California (a city north of San Francisco), in 1971. To demonstrate the sister city relationship, you can find a square (plaza) called “Viña del Mar” in downtown Sausalito, and a “Sausalito” stadium and “Sausalito” lagoon in Viña del Mar. Viña del Mar is also a sister city of Mar del Plata city, Argentina since 1993. There are also intentions to create such relationship with Guangzhou city, China.

Viña del Mar was one of the four host cities during the 1962 Football (soccer) World Cup Championship. It is home to CD Everton Sport Club, a soccer team in the Chilean Premier Soccer Category, which took its name from the English team.

The city has benefited from major investments in infra-structure that have greatly improved the traffic flow in the downtown area, specially in routes connecting Viña del Mar, Santiago, Valparaíso and Quilpue. A modern and efficient subway (Merval) connects Viña del Mar with the cities of Limache and Valparaíso, following the original railroad tracks between Valparaíso and Santiago.

University of Viña del Mar - Chile

Founded November 21, 1988, the University of Viña del Mar (UVM) is a private institution of higher education.

UVM is part of the selected Chilean universities that have been accredited by the Minister of Chilean Education, which certifies the quality of higher educational institutions and assures the completion of optimistic academic standards. The Viña del Mar University has a modern campus located in the higher part of the city and has characteristics and dimensions similar to some of the most important higher education centers in Europe and North America. This location is designed to be an important sector for academic, cultural, social, and technological development. The campus covers over 20 hectares situated on the principle access street to Viña del Mar, adjacent to where in 1987 Pope John Paul II spoke and minutes away from the center of the city. This campus contains the majority of academic schools and departments and has a variety of features such as ample classrooms, auditoriums, a library, laboratories, a amphitheatre, a gymnasium and sport complex, a cafeteria, meeting rooms, administrative offices, banking services, bookstores, a photocopying station, and parking. Degrees: Agronomy, biotechnology, veterinary medicine, architecture, arts, graphic design, interior design, cine, biology, chemistry, mathematics, kinesiology, journalism, public relations; accounting, commercial engineering, business administration; history, philosophy and literature, elementary education, preschool education, english language, engineering in computer science, engineering civil, construction, engineering in environmental, industrial engineering, information systems, law, psychology, sociology.

Universidad Técnica Federico Santa María, UTFSM

The Universidad Técnica Federico Santa María (UTFSM) (Spanish for Federico Santa María Technical University), situated in Valparaíso, is one of the most reputed engineering universities in Chile. UTFSM began its activities in 1931 and owes its origin to the idea of the visionary businessman Federico Santa María, a Chilean who lived in France, who raised a huge fortune as broker in the sugar market in Paris. In his testament, Santa María donated all his fortune to build in Valparaíso -his hometown— a high-standard technical and scientific institution. This institution would be dedicated to prepare students with less socioeconomic conditions but great potential to gain technical and scientific knowledge, so they could contribute to the progress of Chile. His vision was to transform how science and technology were taught in Chile.

Today this mission is not only carried out in Valparaíso, where one can find the main campus, but also in branches in Viña del Mar and Concepción, in campuses in Santiago, Rancagua and Guayaquil (Ecuador), and in the Academia de Ciencias Aeronáuticas, "ACA" (Academy of Aeronautical Sciences), in Santiago, all of which make the University territorially the largest in Chile.

The institution, dedicated to the highest level of teaching and research in science and technology, offers more than 50 undergraduate programs in natural sciences, engineering, management, aeronautics, construction and architecture. The strength of these undergraduate programs, in combination with over 16 graduate programs, a variety of technical degree programs, and classroom enrichment through participation with foreign faculty and students have earned UTFSM a reputation for excellence.

The UTFSM's international involvement can be seen in different aspects of its activities, including in the strength and growth of its faculty and student exchange programs with institutions around the world. The University's commitment to the growth of Chile and its enterprises is evidenced through projects, technical assistance, and research centers, such as those in the fields of aeronautics, small and medium sized businesses, manufacturing, biotechnology, and information technologies.
